Letter from the Chair

Susan Jin Davis
Chief Sustainability Officer at Comcast NBCUniversal

This past year began a new chapter for the Asian Pacific American Institute for Congressional Studies. We said farewell to Floyd Mori who retired after five years of leadership at APAICS and we welcomed Madalene Xuan-Trang Mielke as our next President and Chief Executive Officer.

During Floyd’s tenure, he continued to grow our programs and reach in the AAPI community. Most notably, Floyd:

- Successfully heightened the profile of APAICS within the AAPI community and in government and policymaking;
- Expanded APAICS’s national leadership academy training to include regional academies across the country;
- Increased board diversity, thought leadership, sponsorship, and support for APAICS;
- Strengthened the pipeline for AAPIs running for public office at the local, state, and federal levels; and
- Created a 501(c)4 organization, called the APAICS Leadership Network, to engage in more political activity, get more involved in public policy, and engage in national politics.

In February, the board announced Madalene as its next President and Chief Executive Officer and she officially transitioned into the position at our 24th APAICS Annual Awards Gala Dinner. Madalene brings to APAICS more than 20 years of experience in political and leadership training and non-profit fundraising. We are excited to explore new spaces and expand our programming under Madalene’s guidance.

As we ended 2018, we will begin 2019—fully engaged and ready to promote AAPI participation and representation at all levels of the political process, from community service to elected office. To all our partners, sponsors, and individual donors, we say thank you. We look forward to our continued partnership as we head into the next chapter at APAICS.

The Congressional Fellowship is designed for young APA professionals looking to increase their experience in public policy and service. The full-time, paid, nine-month long program provides Fellows with opportunities to build their leadership skills, encourages political engagement, and fosters interests in public service careers.

The Congressional Internship is designed for APA undergraduate students looking to increase their experience in public policy and service. The paid, eight-week long summer program places interns in congressional offices and provides them with the opportunity to develop their leadership and professional skills.

The National Leadership Academy is a two-day leadership training event for current elected officials, individuals seeking to run for public office, and community stakeholders. The program consists of interactive political training with topics ranging from developing a campaign plan, communications, digital organizing, power mapping, and fundraising.

The Regional Leadership Academy is a two-day leadership training event for current elected officials, individuals seeking to run for public office, and community stakeholders. APAICS partners with local organizations to deliver programming that consists of interactive political training with topics ranging from developing a campaign plan, communications, digital organizing, power mapping, volunteer recruitment and management, and fundraising.
